Hope, Outplayed, Lucky to Beat Camden 6 to 0

Defensive Style of Panthers Puts Locals in Bad Hole

Spears Passes to W. Parsons for Score With 2 Minutes to Go

1ST HALF TERRIBLE

Starts With Blocked Kick, and Hope Never Gets First-Down

By LEONARD ELLIS

The Hope High School football team came to life in the final period here Friday night to defeat Camden, 6 to 0, and remain among the few undefeated teams of Arkansas.

A fourth-quarter pass with only two minutes to play brought victory to the Bobcats. The pass was the most beautiful play of the night. It was good for 50 yards and was fired from the hands of Quarterback Spears to W. Parsons, halfback.

Parsons leaped high into the air, brought down the ball and dashed about 15 yards to cross the goal line. First downs were Hope 5, Camden 9.

The game was witnessed by approximately 4,000 southwest Arkansas football fans including a large delegation of rooters from Camden who came here on a special Missouri Pacific train.

A Bad First Half

The Hope team was anything but impressive until the second half started. It was Camden's game throughout the first half. The Bobcats, from the outset, were unable to click. Hope failed to register a first down in the first half and only once during the first two quarters did the Bobcats penetrate past the 50-yard line.

The Bobcats got into a hole on the second play of the game. After the kickoff, Hill swerved around his own left end for seven yards. On the next play Spears called for a quick-kick, a smart play if the line had held, but the ball was partly blocked and Camden recovered in Hope's territory.

The Bobcats had practiced the quick-kick play all week and every member of the team knew what the second play of the game would be before the battle started. It was Hammons' orders and was a maneuver designed to put the Camden team in a hole at the start. Camden got the ball and a pass from Kizzia to Gillespie put the ball on Hope's 10.

The Bobcats held for downs, and Moore punted out of danger. The balance of the quarter was mostly a punting duel between Moore of Hope and Kizzia of Camden.

The second period saw the Camden team make serious threats to score but lacked the punch to carry the ball across the goal line. The Panthers were hammering four yards from the goal line when the half ended. The first periods saw the Hope team on the defense most of the time.

W. Parsons took the kickoff to start the third quarter and brought the ball up to midfield with a nice run, but Hope was set back 15 yards for clipping. Camden, with runs by Collins and Kizzia, advanced to Hope's 17 where the Bobcat line stiffened and held. The Hope line was outcharged except when Camden was threatening.

The Last Quarter

It was Camden's ball on Hope's 20 when the final quarter started. The Bobcats snapped out of it and got possession on Camden's 35 by a weak punt from Kizzia's toe. A pass to Reese was good for a first down and then on a reverse play W. Parsons got loose and ran to the 1-yard line.

Hope fumbled away its first real chance to score when McDaniels let the ball get away from him on the next play. It was a tough break for Hope.

A few minutes later Kizzia of Camden got loose for a 50-yard run and touch-down, but the ball was brought back and the play nullified. Tough breaks cost both teams touchdowns.

With two minutes to go Spears faded back and shot a long pass to W. Parsons who ran about 15 yards for the touchdown. Try for extra point on a line play failed.

Playing best for Hope were W. Parsons, Moore and Reese. Moore's punting was a big factor in getting the Bobcats out of danger on several occasions. He also played well on defense. Reese played headsup football and threw Camden ball carriers for several losses. Parsons' sensational catch on the touchdown play marked him as the hero.

Waiting—For a Wax 'Mistress'

The dog's traditional devotion to its owner was expressed in the lonely vigil kept by this fox terrier at Knoxville, Tenn., as it waited outside a store window for the wax figure inside—evidently resembling its mistress—to step out of the window and start home. Not even meat, seen on a paper on the sidewalk, could tempt the dog away. But its "mistress" inside did not answer—didn't even look—and the dog, some time during the night, disappeared.

$80,000 Worth of Cotton Purchased

1,200 Bales Sold by Hamner & Russell to Shreveport Concern

Probably the biggest cotton sale in southwest Arkansas this season was made Friday when the first of Hamner & Russell of Bradley sold 1,200 bales to C. A. Kimball, representative of the Ferguson Cotton company of Shreveport.

The 1,200 bales brought $80,000.

Frank Russell of Hope, partner of Mr. Hamner of Bradley, said that 400 bales of the cotton was extra long staple and brought 15½ cents per pound.

Murder, Suicide Occur at Carnival

Cook Slays Wife of Concessionaire and Self at Nashville

NASHVILLE, Ark.—Surrounded by the bright glittering devices of a traveling carnival, Grady Holly, a cook, shot and killed Mrs. Goldie McClanahan, 40, who, with her husband, operated a concession with the carnival, here Friday. Then, his crime betrayed by the woman's screams, Holly shot himself in the head and died instantly. It is believed that robbery was the motive as it had been reported that Mrs. McClanahan carried $800 on her person. Holly had been cooking for Mrs. McClanahan and her husband and presumably knew that she carried the money. It is surmised that he hoped to kill her, secure the money and make his getaway before the crime was discovered. With a crowd attracted by the dying woman's shrieks, however, there was no chance for Holly to escape and evidently he chose death to taking a chance with the electric chair.

The two killings occurred in the trailer truck owned by the McClanahans. Soon after the husband left this morning, Holly was seen to enter the trailer where Mrs. McClanahan was busy with household duties.

A minute later, several dogs that had been loitering near the trailer set

Campaign Closing on Saturday Night

Roosevelt Winds It Up in New York City, London in St. Louis

By the Associated Press

The hurly-burly 1936 campaign roared toward its conclusion Saturday. President Roosevelt, Governor Landon and hundreds of others prepared to speak their last major pieces Saturday night.

All sides agreed that Tuesday probably would see balloting shutter all records. Analyses of registration figures indicated a possible vote of well over 45 million, exceeding by more than 5 million the total cast in 1932.

Roosevelt arranged to speak Saturday in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Landon arrived in St. Louis from the East for an address to Missouri voters Saturday night.

F. D. Plays "Sinister Forces"

NEW YORK.—(AP)—President Roosevelt asserted Friday night that the "Republican leadership," driven by "sinister forces" which had opposed social legislation for generations, is repudiating its legislators in congress and leaving them "looking positively silly."

He spoke at a Democratic rally arranged by the Kings county party organization at the Brooklyn Academy of Music.

A howling crowd crammed every seat and, clogging the aisles of the academy, stood and yelled for 14 minutes as the president walked onto the stage. Seating capacity of the hall is 4,000.

The president brought a roar of laughter from his audience with an interpolation in his prepared text. On the train, he said, he was asked to read and promised a meeting. It was.

"In the morning, the sunflower turns to the East, in the afternoon the sun flower turns to the West; and it goes to seed before November."

10 Clubs Attend Recreation Meet at Hope City Hall

Local Leaders in Charge of Community Social Endeavor

PROGRAM FOR YEAR

Recreational Leadership Needed in Rural Sections, Is View

Recreational leaders representing ten clubs attended a county-wide meeting for leaders Saturday morning at Hope city hall, according to Melva Bullington, home demonstration agent.

Miss June Donahue, extension specialist in community activities, College of Agriculture University of Arkansas, was the principal speaker on the morning program. Miss Donahue took as her subject for discussion "Recreational Goals for Clubs" and "Points and Pit Falls for Leaders."

The need for development of rural leaders is great, stated Miss Donahue. There is so much the rural people fail to get because there is no one who takes the initiative in securing it. Recreation, as defined by Miss Donahue, is determined by a number of things. Outstanding factors are age, occupation, season of the year, locality, and economic condition and general make up of the individual. In general, recreation is that thing which will bring relaxation, entertainment and enjoyment to the individual and group. The old idea of recreation is changing. The public no longer thinks of it as mere games, parlor stunts and sports. It goes into a broader field which makes for culture and education.

Local Leaders

Local leaders, a different one for each month, were appointed early in the year, to be in charge of the social one-half hour at the close of each club meeting and to sponsor community social activities. Local leaders leading the group in games and songs were: Mrs. C. R. White, Columbus club; Mrs. Riley Llewellyn, Green Laster; Mrs. E. H. Butler, Rocky Mount; Mrs. W. E. Elmore, Washington; Mrs. P. J. Holt, Allen.

The afternoon meeting devoted largely to the business of the council, Mrs. O. A. McKnight, vice-president presiding. Mrs. C. R. White, acting as secretary in the absence of Mrs. Lee Garland, decided to have an executive meeting of the council early in December to complete plans for the ensuing year. Club presidents present gave a complete report on club projects and activities. The council voted to have each club donate one jar of canned products to be given to the two 4-H Club Co-operative Homes at the University of Arkansas, Fayetteville, as a Thanksgiving gift, all jars to be taken to the Home Demonstration Agent's office early in November.

Hinton in January

The council will be the guest of the Hinton club in January in their new club house.

Miss Donahue led the group in singing a number of songs of different types, pointing out the different occasions these should be used.

There are more than 2,000 volunteer recreational leaders working in the state under the supervision of the county home demonstration agents, according to Miss Donahue. These leaders, representing home demonstration clubs, 4-H clubs, and other farm organizations, have planned wholesome entertainment for the clubs and communities.

Material for games, stunts and plays may be secured from the county agent's office or from Miss Donahue at the state office.

Catholic Widow Despised King's Desertion of Stage Mistress

Twice-married Mrs. Wallis Simpson, much talked-of American confidante of England's present-day monarch, had her early nineteenth century counterpart in Mrs. Maria Fitzherbert, comely Englishwoman who had two husbands before she became the object of King George IV's ardent wooing. It's the story of Mrs. Fitzherbert's royal romance that Willis Thornton tells today in the third of six articles entitled "When a King Loves—"

By WILLIS THORNTON NEA Service Staff Correspondent

Maria Anne Smythe, wife of Fitzherbert didn't want to marry the fat and miserable prince who was to become George IV of England. But when he wrote her 37-page love letters, groveled and mooned and cried and wound up by making her think he had stabbed himself because of her obduracy, Mrs. Fitzherbert yielded. Probably one reason she hesitated was because, like everybody else in England, she was well known to Mrs. Fitzherbert when the ill-balanced young prince began paying her ardent court. Mrs. Fitzherbert, twice a widow, was a commoner, but she was rich, young, and much courted and admired. She wanted none of the dissolute young prince, especially as she was a Roman Catholic and any marriage

But she rushed to his bedside, as sketched, when he pretended to have slashed his wrists for love of her.

Dr. R. M. Wilson Speaking in L. R.

Columbus Medical Missionary to Address Church on Sunday

LITTLE ROCK.—Dr. R. M. Wilson, medical missionary of the Southern Presbyterian church in charge of the leper mission at Sonchun, Korea, will discuss "Christ and the Modern Lepers" at the First Presbyterian church, Eighth and Scott streets, at 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

Members of other Presbyterian congregations and other persons interested have been invited to hear Dr. Wilson. He has been engaged actively in missionary work among lepers for 30 years. He is a native of Columbus, Hempstead county, and received his A. B. degree at Arkansas College, Batesville. He received his medical training at Duke University and was an interne at a St. Louis, Mo., hospital.

County Chairman W. S. Atkins Announces Termination of Drive

Hempstead county's Democrats have remitted to the Democratic National Committee's presidential campaign fund a total of $1,734—more than doubling the original quota assigned this county. Campaign Fund Chairman W. S. Atkins announced Saturday.

Hempstead's original quota was $750, which was later increased 50 per cent to $1,125 when the State of Arkansas quota was raised from $50,000 to $75,000.

Better Than State

Hempstead's contribution of $1,734.70 against the revised county quota of $1,125 runs considerably better than the performance for the whole state, Mr. Atkins pointed out.

A press release to The Star Saturday from Clifton Scott of Little Rock, state finance director for the National Democratic Committee, announced that the state as a whole had contributed $90,000 against its revised quota of $75,000.

The prospects for meeting the full expectations of the National Committee are very bright, Mr. Scott stated, as he is expecting the total collections to reach $100,000, or more, when the total amount of deferred pledges are collected. Most of these pledges are due in full on November 1st, and Mr. Scott says that he feels sure that everyone who has pledged will pay on November 1, or soon thereafter.

The loyalty of Arkansas Democrats in aiding the National Party to shoulder its financial responsibilities has been an inspiration to party leaders in National Headquarters, according to Mr. Scott, and the necessity for securing every dollar possible and forwarding it to National Headquarters at the earliest possible date is reflected by a news release a few days ago, showing that a deficit of $578,000 has already been acquired by the National Committee, and a larger deficit may be incurred before election day.

Contributions in Arkansas have been received from persons in every walk of life. Mrs. V. J. Miller bequeathed to the party a sum of $1,000, and a few small contributions have been received from negro Democrats in the state who want to see President Roosevelt and Vice-President Garner re-elected.

"Stork Derby" in Canada Near End

Two Mothers Apparently Tie for Fortune—Closes Saturday

TORONTO, Ont.—(AP)—An eighth derby crashed into Toronto's stork derby Friday with a surprise last minute upset that carried her into a tie for first place.

With the finish line less than 24 hours away, Mrs. Isabel MacLean announced her entry in the $500,000 race with a claim of nine children in the last 10 years.

Her sudden appearance broadened the tangle of leaders in the frenzied competition for the money the late Charles Vance Miller bequeathed to the woman who bore the most babies in the decade following his death. Mrs. MacLean, a Scotch mother from eastern Ontario, is the sixth woman to enter a claim of nine children within that time.

Mrs. Lily Kenny, of the other five, had one day left to break the tie. She was confined, awaiting her tenth child. Should the baby arrive in time, there was still a possible legal mix-up to untangle.

The Family Doctor

There Is No Easy Way to Determine Whether a Mushroom Is Harmless

By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

Many centuries ago, the wife, daughter and two sons of the Greek poet Euripides died after eating poisonous mushrooms. Since that time many people throughout the world have died because of their curiosity and appetite.

There are no simple tests by which an untrained person can distinguish the poisonous from the harmless mushrooms. Some people think that peeling off the top of the mushroom reveals the difference; others believe that cooking the mushrooms with a silver spoon will indicate which are poisonous.

When you are out playing golf, it is much safer to stick to the game than to interrupt it by picking mushrooms that happen to grow along the course. You cannot be sure about them when there are 40,000 varieties, and even experts may have trouble in telling the more common types apart.

Recently a group of four people went out picnicking and gathered a large quantity of mushrooms. They put a silver quarter in the pan in which they cooked the mushrooms, believing that the quarter would become tarnished if they were poisonous.

The quarter did not tarnish, but the next morning all four were seriously ill and later two of them died. When their bodies were examined, liver and kidneys, and even the nervous system and brain, showed severe damage.

This shows that it is much better to buy mushrooms from an experienced dealer. If you do happen to feel any symptoms of mushroom poisoning, get a doctor immediately, as this may mean the difference between life and death.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Curb Haunting Terror of Hallowe'en Pranks

Any day now, the porch furniture will have to be taken in, and everything else loose about the place. October, the loveliest month of the year, loses its peace and joy for the householder in view of Hallowe'en pranks. Too bad that we allow a holiday to cast its shadow long before, and permit the men to be as bad, or worse, than the real thing.

And with this in mind, I believe that parents can do much to improve a situation that is fast becoming intolerable to the average citizen.

To begin with, a good talk fest is never out of order. Make it understood that you will not permit any disorderly conduct before Corn Night, or whatever local name fits your night before Hallowe'en. This gives the children two nights instead of one, for ringing doorbells and clowning about. This is a concession toward some peace, at least. Better two nights of fun than two weeks, as so many of our offspring seem to think their birthright.

Be Specific. There is no use denying them this much, and the easily irritated Mr. Smith or Mrs. Jones will just have to go a-visiting at this time, or stuff cotton in their ears. But two nights are enough, and enough is plenty.

Which brings us to the second point in our lecture. Tell the youngsters exactly what you think "decent" fun, and what is outside the pale of good behavior. Don't generalize. Make each order very specific. No stealing, no marking of property. No dumping of refuse on lawns or doorsteps and certainly no burning.

Thirdly, the very best way to keep children off the streets is to entertain them at home. It is the easiest thing in the world to get up a simple little Hallowe'en party. Be sure to let them dress up. From there on, use your own imagination. If a taffy-pull is more than you feel up to, fill in the time with bean hunts and guessing games. Have small favors and decorations (home-made, if you like) in apples and black. Include nuts, yellow and sweet cider in the "eats," and the party is on.

If more parents took the trouble to have parties at home for the children on Hallowe'en nights, the general terror of natives, and the yearly dread of the great day, would subside. It used to be a time generally enjoyed by everyone. But recently it has become a time of license for the few, resulting in weeks of apprehension for everybody.

There's Limit to Patience. There is little harm in younger children dressing up and going about with their little bags from door to door asking for apples or a few nuts. It gives them a thrill. So open up Mr. Tightwad and lay in a supply. It should not be a matter of threats or profanity, either, if your doorbell rings twenty times in one evening. But beyond that, night of it, or two at the most, you have my hearty endorsement if you make war. Patience ceases to be a virtue when a good thing is stretched too far.

I should never let a boy, or girl either, go out for entire evenings without giving an account of his doings. And if I heard a rumor of serious mischief, he should be denied any further liberty until All Hallow's Day is past. Parents know their children. They should have some idea of what is going on. And I repeat that parents, and not the law, will be able to save us one of the most enjoyable festivals of the year. Otherwise the end is almost certain. Let us try to do our part.

Each studio would contribute something—story, sets, use of equipment,

SALUTE TO Love

BEGIN HERE TODAY
KATE AND CAROLINE NEED live on a farm. Meed Meadows, with their lovely, indolent grand-father, MAJOR SAM MEED, and two old Negro servants, ALTHY and ZEKKE. Kate is engaged to husband-one, MORRIS PRENTISS, who neglects her for beautiful and wealthy EVE BLWELL.

JEFF HOWARD, a bitter young mountaineer, Kate hates Jeff, but he is in love with her. Caroline, who is unworthy and jealous, hates him, just as he is on the point of leaving her. Kate's father is hurt and angry, but glad of her freedom. She works on a cottage where race and industry decide to ask Jeff to be a customer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXII
BEFORE the idea could cool Kate obeyed her impulse to add Jeff Howard's name to her list of customers. She changed into riding clothes (shabby boots, breeches and linen jacket) and set off on Brown Boy.

When she reached Meed Meadows she inquired Mr. Howard's whereabouts from a farmhand and learned that he was gathering apples.

It amused her to see his surprise when he looked up from the basket he was packing and found her there. Kate said, "I've come on business, Mr. Howard. My sister and I are taking orders for cottage cheese and baked goods. We'd like to list you for regular deliveries."

"Well!" Jeff exclaimed, surprised and flattered. "I'm right hand of cake, and pie, too. The man I've got cooking for me can't make either. Yes, I'll take some. Regular—regularly, if he corrected himself hastily, college triumphing over cabin.

Kate's eyes were discreetly lowered to her order book. "Two cakes a week, say? And a couple of pies, Mr. Howard?"

"Surely, Yes, indeed."

Kate said, "How about cottage cheese? Would you like a pint of that delivered twice a week?"

"That would be suitable," he assured her quaintly.

Salesmanship was now in Kate's blood. She made another suggestion. "We have very good beaten biscuits. If you'd like several dozen of them each week, it could be arranged."

JEFF HOWARD had the mountaineer's distaste for the "little cracker biscuits" that Blue Grass people set such store by. But then, he reflected hastily, he could feed them to the chickens. He calmly ordered four dozen a week. Kate's business he accepted without quibbling.

They went to the house and broke the news to their grand-father, who was confined to his room with a sprained back. Kate tried to tell the news casually. She said, "Granddad, you know we told you Hyacinth was sick this morning. Well, we called the doctor. But now she's dead—"

Later she saw him groping in would not be politically recognized. For a time she avoided his ardent suit, and then one night they arrived breathlessly at her house and royal surgeon. George had stabbed himself for love of her, the surgeon reported. She rushed to Carlton House, the prince's residence, to find him pale and blood-spattered. Nothing would induce him to live, he said, unless she would marry him.

She promised, but the next day grew frightened, and fled abroad.

Poverty Overtook Them. During the year she was away, the distracted prince wept by the hour, called on the floor and tore his hair, wrote her a continuous stream of ardent love letters, and threatened to forego the crown.

Finally Mrs. Fitzherbert yielded, and the prince met her at the dock with a clergyman. They were married, and for several years lived together as man and wife, mostly at Brighton. Contrary to the general impression of the life of princes, they were soon very poor, for George with reckless extravagance ran through his allowance, and was forced to appeal to an unsympathetic parliament for money. The prince even once sold his horses and houses in an effort to rouse popular sympathy. But people only laughed.

Mrs. Fitzherbert was a woman of high character and did much to keep the bibulous prince more or less sober, and to restrain his prodigal throwing-about of money.

George Proved Fickle Again. But two things curdled the romance after nine years. One was a transfer of George's affections to Lady Jersey, and the other was his necessity to make an official marriage so as to get on. So he married Princess Caroline of Brunswick, appointing Lady Jersey her lady-in-waiting.

Lady Jersey obligingly contrived to have the guileless bride very badly dressed at the wedding, but it made little difference, for Prince George showed up blind drunk anyway. The marriage was a tragedy from the first meeting of the pair. Soon enough, George's thoughts began to return to Mrs. Fitzherbert, whose gracious manner and calm wisdom were the more remembered when absent. He drew farther and farther away from Queen Caroline, though she received much popular sympathy as "the injured queen." One night at the opera someone made so bold as to shout out at the royal box, "Where's your Queen, George?" The regent was freely booed in public places, and a similar partisanship arose to cheer the deserted queen when she appeared by herself.

But George repeated his frenzied courtship of Mrs. Fitzherbert, and friends of the king urged her to accept George once more as her husband, as her marriage was binding in church if not in civil law.

Society Welcomed Her. So outstanding was the character of Mrs. Fitzherbert that she was enthusiastically received in all London and find himself but, instead finds out his frivolous, selfish and extravagant wife.

Sam Dodsworth retires, after years of hard driving work, buildings up his motor car business and indulging the whims of his pretty wife Fran, who years for one last fling before settling down to middle age.

They sail on the Queen Mary and after a series of flirtations on ship-board and in Paris, Fran meets Kurt Von Oberdorfer, an impoverished young Austrian aristocrat, who asks her to marry him. She divorces Dodsworth who is left to wander miserably through Europe alone, in Italy he meets Mrs. Cartwright, a fine, sympathetic woman and they fall in love. When Fran's plans fall through, she sends for him and he gives up his own happiness to join her. But the contrast with Mrs. Cartwright is too great. He sees Fran at last for what she really is and returns to the woman he loves.

society despite her two previous divorces. The Regent himself, despite his nickname of "The First Gentleman of Europe" and his correct waistcoats, was very unpopu-lar.

They were reconciled, and an intimate friend of Mrs. Fitzherbert recalled her saying at this time that "we were extremely poor, but at merry as crickets." It was their happiest time together. While Mrs. Fitzherbert seldom advised on political matters, and George still less often took her excellent advice, it is notable that toward the end of his reign irksome restrictions on the political rights of Catholics were relaxed by passage of the Catholic Relief Bill.

Faithful Wife to the End. King George III had always been known as a bit eccentric and not too bright. But when he started shaking hands with oak trees and shouting out "Tally-Ho!" during family prayers, something really had to be done. Prince George was made Regent, and on the old king's death, assumed the crown. He showed his contempt for the estranged Queen Caroline at that time by having her barred at the very door when she came to see his coronation.

There were wild popular demonstrations in favor of the "injured queen," and the very spicy testimony was on every tongue in England when the king later tried to divorce her. The courts failed to sustain the royal plea.

But the restive George allowed his affections to wander still farther, and when he came to announce to Mrs. Fitzherbert their final separation, her only comment was: "Very well, sir."

She lived then in quiet retirement, silent a like on public and private affairs, bearing quietly the fact that many people of the time did not understand that her marriage to George had the complete sanction of church law. The king had never acknowledged it.

When George came to his last illness, Mrs. Fitzherbert sent him a touching letter offering her services as a dutiful wife, and the king died with her miniature picture fastened about his neck on a silver chain.

up a furious barking, all headed toward the trailer. Carnival employees and curious spectators began to move toward the scene of the uproar.

Suddenly a shrill scream of alarm came from the trailer and Mrs. McClanahan tore open the door, shouting for help. She was a horrible sight, blood streaming from a great gash in her throat. She fell to the ground and died a minute later.

From inside the trailer came the sound of a shot.

Some of the braver members of the crowd pushed into the vehicle, and found the body of Holly, a gaping bullet wound in the head. A bloody butcher knife lying on the floor revealed how Mrs. McClanahan had met her death.

The carnival folk were uncommo-lent, as usual and it was impossible to learn much about the couple. Foreman, Little River county, and his wife lives there. Mr. and Mrs. McClanahan's home was at Topping, Okla.

Officers were unable to find the that the woman was supposed to have carried but they were convinced robbery was the only motive for crime.

Why Shorts Are Terrible. Maybe you have wondered why comedy shorts are so uniformly terrible. This department has wondered, anyway, and got to asking around. The answer is that whenever a fairly good short is turned out, by accident or genius, executives scream: "That's marvelous! Terrific! Stretch it into seven more reels! Make it a feature!" You'd be surprised to know the number of program pictures that were born as lowly shorts.

Adown the lanes of memory bloom all the flowers of yesterday. And looking back we smile to see life's bright red roses reappear. The little sprigs of mignonette that smiled upon us as we passed, the pansy and the violet, too sweet, we thought those days to last. But living things grow old and fade; the dead in memory remain. In all their splendid youth arrayed, exempt from suffering or pain; Time has not changed the joys we knew; the summer rains or winter snows Have failed to harm the wondrous hue of any dew-kissed by-one rose; In memory 'tis still as fair as when we plucked it from our own. And we can see it blooming there, if anything, more lovely grown. Adown the lanes of memory bloom all the joys of yesterday. And God has given you and me the power to make them reappear; For we can settle back at night and live again the joys we know. And taste once more the old delight of days when all our skies were blue.—E. A. G.

Cole-Clyde Beatty Circus Is in Hope for Big Show Saturday

The Great day is here "Circus Day" the one day in the year that thrills old and young—the magic of the circus will never die—it brings back the memories of Mother and Dad, when they first saw the circus arrive and unload.

Hundreds were at Hope Saturday to see the elephants, zebras, camels, yaks, cages of wild animals, horses and in fact a world of strange animals hidden in cages interested every one, for if you can't get a thrill out of a circus, you had best see a doctor at once. Cole Brothers and Clyde Beatty Circus is here, that means that every boy and girl will have a chance to see this wonderful young man perform with his man eating lions and tigers—You have read about him, seen him in movies and now you will see him in person—He will thrill thousands daily. Cole Brothers Circus is different from other shows. First its presentation of the world's most famous Arabian Slaves from every known country on earth, always on the lookout for the greatest artists in the whole circus world, and securing their managere from far off Africa, South America, Asia, Malay and Sumatra provinces, India and far corners of the dense jungles, Borneo and Indo-China. Jumbo the 2nd, the only real large African elephant with any circus in America is worth going miles to see. Lion, tigers, pumas, leopards, jaguars, monkeys in fact every specie of wild animals will be found in the double managere with Cole Bros. Circus here today.

Soming direct from Spain the great Zavalta and Zoppe" troupes of bare back riders, conceded by press and public the greatest acts ever seen in Europe and now for the first time in America they will positively appear with Cole Bros. Circus here Saturday. The Great Illington and Imperial Harolds, The Clarksons, Harold Barnes, world's great master of the wire. The great high wire acts, the acrobats, clowns, beautiful riders, aerialist, tumblers clowns, and not forgetting Mrs. Clyde Beatty and her own creation of training the fierce, Jungle Tiger, the man eating Nubian Lion and the Siamese elephant to perform together in one act—all deadly enemies yet, this little lady has done the most unbelievable miracle.

Seats in advance may be had at John P. Cox Drug store at same price as at show grounds.

Chinese Snub Hits Japanese Feelings

Tension Increases During Celebration of Dictator's Birthday

NANKING, China.—(AP)—Sino-Japanese friction injected a sombre note into China's celebration of the 50th birthday of its dictator, Chiang Kai-Shek.

A Japanese spokesman said the hope of an amicable settlement of Sino-Japanese issues is diminishing. He pointed out that the Nanking semi-official press' failure to publish the felicitations sent to Shiang by Shigeru Kawagoe, Japanese ambassador, was an indication of Chinese unfriendliness.

secretary of Women's Work; and Grant K. Lewis, newly elected executive secretary of the Arkansas Christian Missionary Society. The program will begin at 1:30 p. m., and will continue until 7:30 p. m., with a recess from 5 to 7 for supper and fellowship. Our attendance quota is thirty.

The pastor will speak after the Communion Sunday morning on "Peace Instead of Worry." The expression "Fear Not," is used ninety times in the Old Testament and thirty-four times in the New Testament. Jesus closed his ministry with the expression, "My Peace I Give Unto You." Life will be rich and even for us in proportion as we claim that promise.

This week Tuesday is National Election Day. Every Christian should discharge his full responsibility as a citizen and vote. The pastor will speak at the 7:30 service Sunday on "Civic Grafters, or the Church and Politics." Religion and patriotism are brothers, and brotherhood is divine. A man or woman cannot be a true Christian without doing their level best to be a true patriot. If Christianity is not practical, it is not even Christian. Jesus was not a theorist—He was the world's first and greatest Democrat.

The parson says: "God does not measure your gift of time or talent or money—He measures what you have left."

scramble. Also "expecting" was Mrs. Grace Bagnato, who claimed nine children, too. Two of hers were not registered, however, as the Millar will apparently requires.

Then there was Mrs. Peter Romas to account for. Her babies number seven, and she was "expecting" and hoping for twins.

With all these possibilities, the time element was important. No one knew whether the derby ended at midnight Saturday, or at 4:30 p. m., the time Millar dropped dead in his office.

Who won the race was of no importance to Mrs. Araballa West of Port Burwell, Ont., Millar's next of kin. With her more than 70 years carved deeply in her wrinkled face, she worked in the fields while her lawyers here challenged the validity of the will.

Down the road from Port Burwell was Alexander Butcher, also old, who has joined Mrs. West in demanding that the money Millar left be given to them. They challenge the will as "scandalous" and "contrary to the public good."

In Millar's will he stated he had no "near relations," and that he was at

Pine Bluff Upsets Hot Springs, 19 to 0

Trojans Whipped for First Time

Little Rock Shows Much Power in Beating Fort Smith, 45 to 0

PINE BLUFF.—The Zebras of Pine Bluff High School displayed an entirely new brand of football before 4,000 fans here Friday night. They outplayed and out-generaled the Hot Springs Trojans to win, 19 to 0.

Only twice did the Trojans seriously threaten to score. Both times in the third quarter. However, they were unable to pierce the Zebra line and their passes were not clicking and they lost the ball on downs or interceptions.

One of the most brilliant plays of the game was by Hot Springs when Phillips took Longinotti's pass on his 30-yard line and raced to the Pine Bluff 10 where he was chased out of bounds by Payne. Had he not looked back he probably would have scored a touchdown.

For the Trojans Phillips, Jones and Beahm were the shining lights in defensive play, while the entire Zebra team worked together.

Pine Bluff used laterals, end runs and line plunges, clicking off short gains from the outset. Several times they lost the ball on downs. The Zebras made 14 first downs, while the Trojans made only six, all on forward passes. The Trojans attempted 26 passes, with Longinotti on the heating end. Six were completed for 116 yards, six were intercepted and the others incomplete.

Longinotti, rated one of the greatest players in Arkansas high school football, limped and only once did he run with the ball. He was thrown for a loss and injured.

McGibbony at quarter for the Zebras completely changed his tactics and it was his fine generalship that carried the ball deep into Trojan territory time after time.

Tigers Swamp Fort Smith

LITTLE ROCK.—The Little Rock High Tigers made a convincing job of outlasting the Fort Smith Grizzlies in a football game at the new stadium Friday night, when they conquered the 45 to 0. The Tigers scored in all quarters, making six points in the first, six in the second, 14 in the third and 15 in the final.

Binks Bushmaier, Lowell, Martindale, and the punts were hitting just right. Once Bushmaier kicked out on the enemy's seven-yard stripe and another time Tom Spaulding Jr. dropped a 35-yard boot on the Grizzlies' nine.

The first score came shortly after

Binks Bushmaier, Lowell, Martindale, Hamilton Gunn, Graves Fuller and Carl Clinton, Fort Smith ballcarriers, showed class, but couldn't get going somehow, or maybe because the Tiger linemen disapproved.

The Little Rock outfit unleashed some neat aerial work, but their power plays were clicking as scheduled, so they didn't try many lateral tricks.

A Vastly Improved Team

The Tigers got their offense in full swing for the first time this season and convinced a homecoming crowd, estimated at 4,200 the best they were ready for the toughest opposition in the state.

Improvement was noted in every department. The blocking was better, the pass receivers were getting clear

Benton Team Wins From Catholic High

Blytheville Marks Up 25th Straight Win by Defeating Greenwood, Miss.

BENTON.—Benton showed an aggressive offense Friday night and romped to a 37-to-7 victory over the Catholic High Rockets of Little Rock. A world of power was shown by the Panthers as they scored in every quarter and ran up 20 first downs to five for the Rockets.

The Panthers started the scoring in the first quarter when they made eight consecutive first downs, mostly on offensive smashes by Conrad and Nelson. Nelson went over for the score.

Later, Drennan made 16 yards through center, and Nelson passed to Smith on the Rocket's four-yard line. Covey scored on the next plunge. Then Drennan plunged for the first extra point of the year that the Panther team has scored.

Blytheville Wins Again

BLYTHEVILLE.—Blytheville Chicks scored their 25th successive win by defeating Greenwood (Miss.) Bulldogs, contenders for the Mississippi championship, 13 to 7, here Friday night. A crowd of more than 5,000 saw the game, which was the closest for Blytheville in three years.

The Chicks took an early lead when Mosley ran the end for 15 yards to score on the last play of the first quarter.

In the second period Greenwood came back strong with D. Follow completing a 35-yard pass to the Chicks' 33-yard line. Another pass, Hoffman to Dautone, accounted for the visitors' lone score, and they passed for the extra point.

Comic strips produced by American artists appear in 32 foreign languages and in papers of most of the nations of the world.

On the next play, Gunn skirted the end for 20 yards, placing the ball on the 12. Bushmaier and Martindale carried it to the five in two tries, and Martindale made a first down on the Fort Smith two. Bushmaier moved the ball on one yard and Martindale went over on a hard line smash. His kick for the extra point was wide.

Scouting Enables Football Teams to Start From Scratch—Says Thornhill

Spies Spot Flaws That Map Attack Beforehand—Scouts Make It Possible for Teams to Proceed From Opening Kickoff

By TINY THORNHILL

Head Coach, Stanford University
STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Calif.—Scout reports enable teams to shoot the works from scratch.

Without valuable information from foxes foragers, clubs would flounder around throughout the first half feeling each other out. Scout reports make it possible for outfits to proceed intelligently from the beginning and make the entire 60 minutes of football spectacular. Spectators get the benefit of these reports, although the great majority of them know little or nothing about them.

Scouts hold highly important positions on every coaching staff. A scout usually has more experience than any other member outside of the head coach. He helps to coach the team during the week. He must know every type of football employed by every team in his club.

A scout collects technical data, and it goes without saying that it cannot be guessed at.

At work, the scout first thoroughly establishes the identity of each member of the team which he is inspecting.

He notes just how good the kickoff is so that we will know how to place our men in kickoff formation. He notes whether the team we are to meet has any kickoff freaks such as a short high one that it attempts to recover, or a short dribble kick to the side.

Good Scout Knows All

We also must know how the ends go down under kickoffs, so we can place our men at advantageous points to block these fast wingers.

The team being scouted is watched for how it receives a kickoff—the side of the field it usually runs to, the type of blocking, the best runner on this type of play, and whether any trick stuff is used on the return.

The scout determines the type of offense the team is using, whether it is a combination of both, whether it shifts, and if so the type of shift, and whether it uses the shift all the time or just part time to throw men into advantageous spots.

The scout picks up the type of change the line uses. He ascertains just who who these men are taking out on certain plays, and whether they are after their line assignments are completed, go through and pick off members of the secondary.

How well do the ends block the tackles? Who are the best blockers in the backfield and what types of blocks do they use? The scout analyzes the plays of the backs, and the type of generalship used by the signal caller.

Does the team hammer at a weakness, or does it screen the fact that it knows this weakness until it needs yardage?

Who carries the ball and what is the type of play used when a large and small gain is needed? How good is the power back?

Solving Passes Important

Our future opponent's finest interceptors, both in the line and backfield, must be pointed out.

We must know what open field runners it has, just how good they are, and how we must play to keep them bottled up. The scout must pick out the tactics used by these open field runners to get away from tacklers.

Whether they use a change of pace, a good stiff start, certain steps to avoid being brought down, use their interference to good advantage, or simply try to outrun the opposition.

The scout must determine the type of pass the team uses, whether it is a running spot or optional pass, as this makes considerable difference in our defensive plans.

He picks out the most skillful passer, finds out just who protects him, how many men go down, and determines the spots where these men go on various passes. Nearly every squad has one or two good pass receivers. The scout finds out who they are.

Does the team pass on any down, any place on the field, or only when a long gain is needed? Does it cover up the intent to pass, or can the defense detect it at once?

Has the team a capable quick kicker? This makes considerable difference in the structure of our backfield defense. Has the team a first-rate punter, and just how fast does he get the ball away? What does he do with the ball when he is in a position to punt at various places on

Porker Backfield Is Much Improved

Robbins, Keen, Martin Be in Shape Again Texas Aggies

COLLEGE STATION, Texas.—Observers here see the possibility the Arkansas Razorbacks may have a powerful running game Saturday night when they come to "face the music" in the Texas Aggie Leadership of the conference stake.

Return of Jack Robbins, Allen and Bobbie Martin to the backfield caused the prediction. Arkansas gawd Robbins and Keen as on with my backs in the Southwest conference when it comes to "face the mail." Martin is a hard worker who specializes in cutting wouldbe tacklers with precise blocking.

There was no doubt, however, the gridiron would see plenty of pigskins. The Aggies have pay Jim Shockey to pit against Robbins and Shockey more than held his own.

C. U. J. Sammy Baugh who Aggies downed the Horned Frogs against letting Jim Benton or Hamilton of Sheridan get into open to snag passes. Benton has scored 24 points this season through ability to bring down heavens.

Both Fred Thomsen of the Razorbacks and Homer Norton use the modified Notre Dame and short punt offense.

The teams have met nine times since 1902, with Arkansas winning five. The Aggies have won two and two have ended in ties. The Texans have scored 106 points to 86 for Arkansas.

comes out of the line on interference the field? How do the backs block punts, straight ahead or do they cover over and cross block? If any kickers are blocked, why and how?

Monkeys in City Hall

KINSTON, N. C.—(AP)—City-owned monkeys, named for the mayor and aldermanic board members, will give the run of the second floor of city hall this winter. Municipal officials decided to move the simians when it was pointed out their outrageous subject them to too much posture in winter.
